Game Description

In this official The Traitors (board) game, players at home get to take part in The Traitors experience. They must use their wits to unmask the traitor, or remain undetected as the traitor, whilst competing alongside faithfuls to win the prize pot.

At the start of the game, one of the players is secretly appointed 'the traitor', while the other players will be 'faithfuls'. As all players - faithfuls and traitor alike - go on missions to earn silver for the prize pot, the traitor is also trying to fulfill his own secret assignments to earn the right to 'murder' faithfuls during the Night phase. It's up to the faithfuls to figure out which of the players has its own secret agenda and try to 'banish' the traitor during the Round Table phase.

While being banished or murdered takes away silver from your personal stash, voting to banish the traitor or successfully murdering faithfuls (for the traitor) earns you silver. The two players with the most silver in their personal stash by the end of the game compete against each other in a prisoners dilemma for the prize pot. Will they split the pot? Or try to take it for themselves?

Unique selling points

- An experience that's true to the spirit of the TV show, while still playable in one evening.
- 6x4 unique missions, created with the makers of the show. For example: 'Send a text message to a person of your choice. The first player to receive a reply wins!'
- A deduction mechanic that sparks discussions "You seem suspicious because you were eager to be the starting player", "Yeah, but you looked more suspicious, touching your own nose about every 10 seconds!", "It was itchy!"
